DEMENTED WOMAN
ATTEMPTS SUICIDE.Mrs. Allen Snyder of Vanderbilt Shoots Herself
Four Times.

HER CONDITION IS SERIOUS

While Others of Family Were Outside
This Morning Mrs. Snyder Secured
Key to Dresser, Got Revolver and Shot Four Times.

Mrs. Mollie Snyder, aged about 55, shot herself with suicidal intent this morning and is near death at her home in Dunbar township, on the outskirts of Connelville. Although the self-inflicted wound would not necessarily be fatal, the secondary conditions are adverse to ultimate recovery. Mrs. Snyder shot herself in the temple. She is still unconscious and suffering from shock.

The tragedy occurred at 6 o'clock this morning. Mrs. Snyder, the wife of Allen Snyder, has been ill for the past three months and of late her mind became unbalanced. She frequently threatened to take her own life, in fits of melancholia, but the family never gave any heed to her threats.

This morning others of the family, Mr. Snyder, his daughter, Mrs. Frank Edwards and her husband, were outside. Mrs. Snyder was just starting to work while Snyder was doing his morning chores. Shots were heard to ring out in the bedroom above. The last was fired at Edwards sprang upon the porch and started indoors. He rushed up the stairs and found Mrs. Snyder lying upon the floor of her bedroom. She was bleeding profusely. Before she fell she had placed the revolver on the dresser. Of the five .35 caliber cartridges were empty.

Dr. George H. Roberts was summoned. He called in Drs. J. H. Haggett and Coroner H. J. Bell of Dawson. Examination developed that two of the bullets missed their mark; a third grazed the top of the skull but did not penetrate it, while the fourth had entered the right temple but did not reach the brain. The course of the bullet was backward and downward. It was finally located in one of the bones of the left side of the head. Mrs. Snyder had secured possession of the key to the drawer in which the revolver was kept locked. She waited until the other members of the family had gone out of doors before attempting the deed. Arrangements had been pending for some days to take her to a sanitarium in the hopes that a complete recovery might be effected.

Dudash Beats Wife;
She Wants Divorce

As the result of cruelly mistreating his wife and threatening her life, Mike Dudash was given a hearing last night before Judge Robert McLaughlin of Dunbar township on a charge of assault and battery. The information was made by his wife, Mrs. Susan Dudash, a week or so ago, but the hearing could not be held until Mrs. Dudash was able to appear against her husband. About two weeks ago Mike Dudash alleges her husband quarreled with her and later struck her several times with a chair and since that time she has been under the care of a physician. After cruelly beating her he threatened her life. The quarrel will also result in a divorce case. Mrs. Dudash applied for a divorce yesterday morning and at the hearing last night papers were served on the defendant. Mike and Mrs. Dudash are well known foreigners of Connelville and the case has created much excitement there.

Butcher Killed on Own Meat Hook

United Press Telegram.
GREENSBURG, Pa., June 12.—James Dore, a butcher prominent in fraternal societies in this city, met instant death in a refrigerated store this morning when he turned around suddenly to answer a call from one of his clerks.

The sudden turn caused his feet to slip from under him and his body caught on a meat hook. The point penetrated his heart. He hung there for three minutes before the body was discovered and when he was lifted from the hook life was extinct.

GREENSBURG, Pa., June 12.—(Special.)—F. J. Bricker of Greenville was this morning appointed jury commissioner to succeed C. E. Arkney of Youngstown, resigned.

Band Stand is Getting Attention

When the next band concert is held there will be a greater range for the sound owing to the fact that the back-board which walls in three sides of the octagon is to be removed. At a meeting of the band last evening it was the unanimous opinion of the musicians that the sounding board idea is not giving satisfaction.

The siding will be used to walk in the space between the ground and the floor. This morning Secretary J. Fred Klutz of the Chamber of Commerce made arrangements with Secretary Frank L. Chase of the Y. M. C. A. to have the care of the chairs left in the hands of a committee of Y. M. C. A. boys. It is necessary to bring the 29 chairs out of the library basement before a concert and return them afterwards. Secretary Chase agreed to take this work upon his shoulders and will enlist several boys into service.

Heavy Rainfall
This Morning

The hardest shower of the present season came this morning shortly before 11 o'clock and lasted 15 minutes. The rain poured in torrents and for a time after it had ceased it was almost impossible to cross Main street between Pittsburgh street and the bridge because of the water, which swelled in the gutters on either side. At some places the water overflowed to the sidewalk, being deeper than the curb level.

The sewage system is ample for ordinary purposes but when a heavy rain comes it is impossible for all the water to be taken care of in the big pipes and there is an overflow. From the Pinnacle district the water rushed down town with considerable force and brought down the usual deposit of dirt and sand.

Yesterday was another hot day. The temperature at 5 o'clock was 83. During the night it was cool and a breeze made it possible to sleep with comfort. Blankets were not uncomfortable. This morning the temperature was 68 degrees. The morning was cool and just before the drenching shower fell it was quite chilly.

Can Get Special
Car to Brownsville

On last Sunday morning the superintendents of the different local Sunday schools were asked to find how many men and boys from their Sunday school would go to Brownsville tomorrow evening to attend the annual Sunday-school convention of Fayette county and to participate in the parade to be composed of members of the Organized Adult Bible Classes of Fayette county, and to hear Hon. J. Frank Hanley's address on "Civic Evolution." If a sufficient number of persons go, a special car will be chartered, and as the result the rates would be less, and those who cared to could return home the same evening.

As yet a sufficient number. All a special car has not notified the committee, and unless all persons desiring to go notify S. B. Henry by calling on the Tri-State phone No. 623, before tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock, the matter will be dropped. If the special car is chartered it will leave here at 4:30 P. M.

La Follette for Free Trade Bill

United Press Telegram.
WASHINGTON, June 12.—Declaring that he would offer amendments that would reduce the cost of living to the consuming public by more than $200,000,000 per year, Senator La Follette this afternoon submitted a report advising to the Canadian reciprocity bill to the Senate as a member of the Senate Finance Committee. He said:

"It represents neither the principle of protection nor that of tariff for revenue only. The only principle which may be fairly said to find expression in this bill is the principle of free trade. I respectfully submit that no man who believes either in a tariff for revenue only or a protective tariff can consistently give it his support. No relief from the excessive cost of living will result from the changes in the tariff on the manufactures covered by this agreement."

Local Couple Married.
Miss Della Weaver and William M. Russell, both of Connelville, were married last evening by Squire P. M. Buttermore at his home on Main street, West Side.

STEP-MOTHER IS ACCUSED BY GIRL.Police Declare Mrs. Way-
Henkle Poisoned Her Daughter.

IS FRIEND OF MRS. SCHENK

Woman is Said to Have Read Details of the Schenk Trial and Then Administered Arsenic in Grape Juice.

United Press Telegram.
DELAWARE, O., June 12.—With the securing today of details of the alleged poisoning case in which Mrs. Jessie R. Way-Henkle was arrested yesterday charged with administering arsenic to her 21-year-old step-daughter, Miss Merle Henkle, local officers declare the case is a parallel to the Laura Farnsworth Schenk case at Wheeling.

Added to this fact it was learned today that Mrs. Henkle was a friend of Mrs. Schenk's and during the trial of the Schenk case, in which Mrs. Schenk was charged with poisoning her millionaire husband, read all the reports. Mrs. Henkle, however, asserts her innocence of the crime. Miss Henkle, the victim of the poisoning, is known as the town's "college widow." A month ago she returned from a house party at Athens suffering from a nervous breakdown. On June 2, after her stepmother had cared for her at home for some time, she was taken to the James Case hospital and a few days later three physicians had pumped two drams of arsenic from her stomach. Her doctor stated that it was the overdose alone that saved her life.

The detectives assert that the poison was served in a glass of grape juice which Mrs. Henkle gave to the girl the day before she was taken to the hospital. James D. Henkle, father of the victim and husband of the accused, has taken no part in the case. He is a traveling salesman, prominent here. W. P. Atkinson, a wealthy retired merchant of Caldwell, O., and father of Mrs. Henkle, arrived today and put up the $2,000 bond necessary for her release.

Mrs. Henkle, from her bed in the hospital, told the following story. "From the moment I was taken ill I was afraid. Mrs. Henkle seemed jealous of my father's attentions to me. After I was sick a few days I noticed things tasted peculiarly and at night I would wake up with a start and see Mrs. Henkle standing above me in a nightmare. Then came the awful night when I was going to die. Papa's wife came in and began telling me of an awful dream she had had during the night. She told of how she had seen a white hearse pull up at the house and six men walk up the stairs and carry me out."

Mrs. Henkle was formerly proprietor of a millinery store and was married about five months ago.

SEVERE STORM
SWEEPS COAST.Washington Cut Off From Communication With Outside World.

VIRGINIA PENINSULA SWEEP

Estimated That Between 15 and 18
Are Dead As Result of Worst Storm
In Years—Shipping on Chesapeake Bay Is Tied Up.

One of the worst storms in years swept the Atlantic seaboard yesterday. The greatest damage was done along the Maryland and Virginia coast. In the Pennsylvania district of Virginia between 15 and 18 lives are reported to have been lost while shipping on the Chesapeake bay sustained considerable damage. Communication with Washington was greatly hampered and possible only by devious circuits.

United Press Telegram.
RICHMOND, Va., June 12.—Leaving death and destruction in its wake a terrible storm swept over the lower end of the Virginia peninsula. Early estimates place the dead between 15 and 18. None of the bodies has been recovered and the identity of none is known as yet.

At Newport News houses were unroofed, trees and poles blown over and shipping disabled. The property loss will, it is believed, exceed $100,000.

Norfolk telephones were put out of commission, trolley cars were tied up and the electric power houses rendered helpless to furnish light for hours. Several houses were struck by bolts of lightning.

CAPE CHARLES, Va., June 12.—During the heavy electric and wind storm there last night several cars aboard a barge of the New York, Philadelphia and Norfolk railroad en route from Norfolk to Cape Charles in the Chesapeake Bay were unroofed. Captain Forrest of the tug Portsmouth, towing the barge, reported the storm the most severe he ever experienced while passing the cape.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—The capital was cut off last evening from all communication with the outside world. A terrible storm swept the city. Late in the night a few roundabout wires were serviceable but no direct communication was possible early today between Washington and New York.

Heavy damage was done to trees in the parks and avenues and one workman was electrocuted when a live wire fell.

Coal Trade Flat
in West Virginia

B. Frank Overholt of Scottsdale was in town last evening on his way home from a trip into the Fairmont district, where he has coal interests. He reports the coal business flat, but the coal business good. The latter has materially improved and prices have recently advanced 7 cents per ton.

The business which is most active in that section, however, he says is the action being brought against the United States Government for damages to riparian lands by the construction of the upper Monongahela river locks. The dams have backed up the water and inundated portions of ground. The cases have all been decided in favor of the complainants in the lower courts, and it is thought that the claims will eventually be paid in full.

The cases are practically all in the hands of a single law firm, which will, it is estimated, make a handsome fortune in fees.

Bids are Opened for Street Work

Special to The Courier.
SCOTSDALE, June 12.—The Town Council met last evening with President M. L. Hasness, John M. Pyle, W. L. Schaffer, J. F. Berry, J. W. Fitzsimmons, H. G. Martz, W. H. Slaughter and A. B. Findlay present. The bids for paving Grant avenue, Stoner street, Fourth avenue and two sections of Market street were opened. Borough Engineer J. B. Hogg was present with Glen Gibson accompanying him. Gibson took down the prices on sheets ruled for that purpose and had a great collection of figures which the borough engineer's office is tabulating today in order to show the relation of the bids when Council meets tonight to award the contract.

Bidding upon the pieces of streets instead of the job as a whole makes the bids a complicated set of several thousand figures, when it is considered that each bidder bid on an average of nine different kinds of bricks and blocks. The bidders were P. J. Flynn of Connelville; Harry Hall & Co. of Homestead; Charles H. Baldwin of Coraopolis; J. W. Butler of McKeesport, and the Uniontown Construction Company, C. J. Coates, president.

The bids were opened in the Council room which was crowded with contractors and brick dealers and citizens. The new railing had been put up in the room and this kept the crowd outside of the sacred preserve.

Black Hand Busy
in Chicago Again

United Press Telegram.
CHICAGO, June 12.—A band of "Black Hand" operatives, folled in their demands for blackmail money, today dynamited two saloons on the South Side. Hundreds were thrown into a panic.

The men compared notes and found the demands were identical. Rantia having also received demands and ignored them. Lottisimo's saloon was dynamited about 3:15 this morning. Sewer Committee
Visits Pinnacle

The Sewer Committee of Town Council held a meeting last night and made a tour of inspection of the Pinnacle district. The committee was seeking some means of abating the trouble in the vicinity of the Pittsburg brewery where the sewer is insufficient to take care of the storm water that accumulates during each rain.

The one sewer has to take the drainage from a large area on the Pinnacle, too much for a single pipe. The Councilmen could not see any way the matter can be remedied and to properly sewer the Pinnacle section north of Fayette street would cost in the neighborhood of $15,000. There is sufficient sewage for ordinary occasions, but heavy rains play havoc with the street and surrounding low neighborhood.

Will Remodel the
Porter Building

TUESDAY EVENING, JUNE 13, 1911.

THE JOEY BAGSTOCKS OF JOURNALISM.

In a lengthy and labored editorial, the ambitious and ardent aspirant to the title of Official Organ for something or somebody, debates the question whether a certain editorial printed in The Courier recently is the expression of "noble sentiments or slush."

The News concludes that it is "slush." It is not becoming in us to debate this matter with our contemporary, but since its opinion of The Courier's editorial columns has been so unreasonably free to feel at liberty to pass similar judgment upon it. We submit in candor that if "The Courier's" editorial was "slush," that of The News is unmistakably what it plain but perhaps inelegant English is denominated "slobber." The Courier may have its faults, and they may be many, but it is never a slobberer. It may be a blubberer, but it is never a slobberer. It has opinions of its own, and its thirty years record in public affairs shows that it has always had the courage of its convictions.

We repeat it this much quoted editorial of The Courier has been much offending to some good citizens, and we hope they will believe that it was not written with that intent, but was inspired by the motto of Conneltsville: Get-Together Club. We have no apologies to offer for the forcefulness of its language. It is not our habit to be mealy-mouthed. If we have been severe, we have not been malicious. Faithful are the wounds of a friend; deceitful the kisses of an enemy. Beware of the Joey Bagstocks who slyly flatter that "thrift may follow fawning."

THE UNHORING OF COLONEL GUFFEY.

The vengeance of Bryan, aided and abetted by some ambitious young men in Pennsylvania who aspire to Democratic leadership, still pursues Colonel James Madison Guffey, the veteran leader who has based the party with a benevolent hand and a paternal cure for the past fifteen years.

The efforts to unhorse the doughty Colonel have been but partially successful. He still holds the position of leader with an iron hand. With a view to reducing some of his friends in the State Committee it is proposed to hold a big Democratic meeting at Harrisburg, ostensibly to form a Federation of Democratic Clubs, but really to impress the more susceptible Guffey Committee with the notion that the Colonel is on the sliding board.

To do this the Palmer-McCormick Guthrie wing has called to its assistance Speaker Champ Clark and Governor Woodrow Wilson, both of whom are understood to be candidates for the Democratic Presidential nomination. Governor Harman of Ohio and Governor Dix of New York are also being solicited to attend the gathering. It will be a great show and will reflect much glory upon its king managers. It will be astonishingly loose to loosen the allegiance of the Guffey men. There may be other temptations, too.

It begins to look as if the Colonel will have to fight for his position and fight pretty hard. It is hard to keep the boys at home when a circus with a drove of big elephants comes to town.

THE DEADLY ICE-WATER HABIT.

Doubt reports the death of a man from drinking too much ice water. In hot weather it is wiser to refrain from indulgence in ice-water, or in fact in too much water of any kind. Drink moderately and dilute the ice-water with water not feed so that the temperature is not above ordinary spring-water.

The more ice water one drinks in very hot weather, the more one wants. There may be excess in drinking water as well as in drinking beer or whiskey.

THE WISDOM OF A FREE PRESS.

It is a singular fact that the average legislator seems to have a personal aversion against the press. This antipathy finds positive expression in drastic libel laws and other oppressive legislation, and negative expression in failure to enact wise and just legislation regulating publicity and the newspaper's profit thereby.

The Governor of Illinois has just vetoed a bill which prohibited the newspapers from publishing accounts of crimes. It does not appear whether the bill was inspired by those ill-natured legislators who are accused of bribery in connection with the election of a United States Senator and other matters, but the Governor refused his assent to the bill for the reason that in his judgment it was "an unwarranted interference with the liberty of the press."

There are good papers and bad papers, but the press is not all venal at all times, and without its independence of thought and action we

WE'RE DUE TO BE ROASTED.
On the strength of the Standard Oil decision, the furnace manufacturer has banded into a "reasonable" trust.

For this free country would fall upon all times. This fact was appreciated by the fathers of the Constitution, who had ample reason to know the value of the press and the threat to liberty involved in its gagging.

Men despise a coward, but not less so a trimmer. Better have honest convictions and be frank and fair in their expression, than to trim one's sails to every popular breeze. The popular breeze sometimes looks like a good trade wind, but it is in this regard most deceiving. It is gusty and uncertain, and cannot be depended upon to drive one to port. It sometimes blows out suddenly as it blows and leaves those dependent upon it to drift helplessly.

The strident Klondyke has nothing on some of the Washington county mining towns when it comes to Sunday cut-ups.

WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENCE.

United Press Special.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—Secretary of War Stimson is telling the following story on himself, since his horseback trip the other day with Maj. Gen. Wood, his chief of staff, into Virginia, to the camp of the engineer and cavalry forces stationed near Washington. Gen. Wood and the Secretary rode out to the camp, where they were received with much attention. The officers came up to pay their respects, and upon looking at their insignia, Secretary Stimson, who is a member of Squadron A, the cavalry unit, cavalry organization of New York, discovered that the cavalryman he was meeting belonged to the same regiment, the 15th, with which his militia organization had been detailed during the summer of 1901. Among the officers, Secretary Stimson discovered to his grief, several whose names he had known serving as a private in the militia ranks at these maneuvers.

Through the Secretary of War, the cavalryman, who is a member of Squadron A, and is now relieved of the duty of holding officers' horses, he declared it was worth it in the pleasure of meeting the 15th cavalryman in his new position.

The most modern and advanced ideas upon penology will be introduced into the army method of handling garrison prisoners, according to orders just issued by Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood, Chief of Staff. The new regulations will not apply to military convicts, but only to those sentenced to confinement and hard labor without being discharged from the service.

The purpose behind the new regulations is to give the prisoner every opportunity to make good instead of discouraging all efforts toward good behavior. Under the new orders, garrison prisoners will be allowed an abatement of two days of their term of confinement for each period of 30 days of good behavior, when serving sentences of one month and not more than three months. On sentence exceeding three months they will be allowed the days abatement for the first month and thereafter for each period of 30 days of good conduct. Abatements thus authorized may be forfeited wholly or in part by subsequent misconduct.

A garrison prisoner who has served one half of a sentence of ten days or more, according to the new regulations, will be permitted to submit a request to be put on probation for the remainder of the sentence, and his request will be granted if his conduct is not good while on probation. It will be required to serve the remainder of his sentence.

The new orders also make important changes in the methods of working garrison prisoners at hard labor. These changes have been outlined in the following letter sent to the commandant of the post at Fort Mifflin, Pa.

"The present system of working garrison prisoners under sentence of confinement is based upon the principle of the prisoner, gives the public the erroneous idea that the army is full of criminals. It is a disgraceful headline, is injurious to the self-respect of the prisoners, discourages enlistment and lowers the military service in public opinion. In addition to these objections, the system constitutes a heavy drain upon the commandant's time and energy in the supervision of the prisoners. It is deemed advisable and in the interests of the service to adopt a different method of handling these garrison prisoners who are confined for comparatively short periods of time, to move and to subject to a system of work under guard."

It is therefore directed that as far as is practicable, as may be determined by post commanders in accordance with the above policy, garrison prisoners will be paroled to work under the general supervision of the officer or commissioned officer in charge of prisoners whose character of offenses are of such a nature as to require that they be kept under armed guard, and are subject to a system of work under guard, which will make the presence in the service of this class of men as little conspicuous as possible."

Street street, London, known "the world over from mention of it in tales of fact and fiction and in the stories of travelers' tales in a report from Consul General John L. Griffith, a retired citizen of India and a celebrated political speaker.

A thoroughfare runs from one of the Strand to Ludgate Circus, Griffith says, and is subject to a system of work under guard, which will make the presence in the service of this class of men as little conspicuous as possible."

New Milk Law in Pennsylvania Closely Regulates the Sale of Milk.

Special to The Courier.
HARRISBURG, Pa., June 12.—In an interview, Dairy and Food Commissioner Foust, commented on the new milk law, known as House Bill No. 816, which was approved by Governor Tener on the 3rd day of June, A. D. 1911. This law, said the Commissioner, marks a great step forward in the interest of the householder and the honest dairyman. It puts the pump out of commission as a substitute for the good old brander cow, and gives the town child a chance to get fair food. It drives the drug shop out of the milk depot and puts the deceptive thicker as it enters the door.

The law, the Commissioner adds, fixes the standard for milkfat at 3.25 per cent and that for total milk solids at 12 per cent, these being the percentages below which milk sold for household use, and to be served in hotels, restaurants and boarding houses, may not go. This is the first law enacted in Pennsylvania in which a milk standard for the entire State has been fixed. It is worthy of note also, said the Commissioner, that the standard thus set is identical with the National milk standard governing the milk trade between the States. This standard was proclaimed by the Secretary of Agriculture of the United States under authority of Congress, upon the recommendation of an expert commission who had studied the milk laws of the various cities and commonwealths of the Union, as well as the composition of milk of known purity from thousands of dairy cows of all breeds and from all parts of the country.

The law interferes, however, with no fair trade in any wholesome milk or milk product. Skim milk, when clean and wholesome, may still be sold, if sold as such, for household use, and milk yielded by cows of low fatness may easily be brought to standard by the use in the herd of cows producing fat-rich milk, or may be sold to the creamery as heretofore on the basis of its actual analysis.

The Commissioner further states that this law also improves the standard for cream, bringing up the requirement to 15 per cent, as in the National standard, and prohibits the sale as cream of a mixture of cream with evaporated or condensed milk, or with any other substance having the effect of increasing its thickness or consistency. The analyses of the creams recently on sale in the State show clearly the fairness of this standard.

The Commissioner expresses the hope that the press may give the full and correct picture of these facts so that the milk dealers may all be informed of these changes in the law and may guard against any transgression of the requirements.

The DANGEROUS TRAIL

by JAMES OLIVER CURRY

CHAPTER XVI.

FOR many minutes Howland stood waiting as if life had left him. The note fluttered from his fingers, and he drew his watch from his pocket and placed it on the table. It was a quarter of 8. There still remained forty-five minutes.

Three-quarters of an hour and then—death! There was no doubt in his mind this time. Through one of the black holes in the wall he was to be shot down, with no chance to defend himself, to prove himself innocent. And Melesse—did she, too, believe him guilty of that crime?

He groaned aloud and picked up the note again. Softly he repeated her last words to him, "If God fails to answer my prayers I will still do as I have promised and follow you." Those words seemed to cry aloud his doom. Even Melesse had given up hope. And yet was there not a deeper significance in her words? He started as if some one had struck him, his eyes gleamed.

"I will follow you."

He almost sobbed the words this time. His hands trembled and he dropped the paper on the table and turned his eyes in staring horror toward the door. What did she mean? Would Melesse kill herself if he was murdered by her brothers? He could see no other meaning in her last message to him, and for a time after the chilling significance of her words struck his heart he never restrained himself from calling aloud for Jean. If he could but send a word back to her, tell her once more of his great love—that the villain of that love was ample reward for all that he had lost and was about to lose, and that it gave him such happiness as he had never known even in this last hour of his torture.

Twice he shouted for Croiset, but there came no response save the hollow echoes of his own voice in the subterranean chambers. After that he began to think more sanely. If Melesse was a prisoner in her room it was probable that Croiset, who was now fully recognized as a traitor at the post, could no longer gain access to her. In some secret way Melesse had contrived to give him the note.

In Howland's breast there grew slowly a feeling of sympathy for the Frenchman. Much that he had not understood was clear to him now. He understood why Melesse had not revealed the names of his associates at Prince Albert and Wokuso. He understood why she had fled from him after his abduction and why Jean had so faithfully kept secrecy for her sake. She had fought to save him from her own death and blood, now Jean had fought to save him. And because he had fought for him and Melesse the Frenchman's fate was to be almost as terrible as his own. It was he who would die the fatal shot at 8 o'clock. Not the brothers, but Jean Croiset, would be his executioner and murderer.

The minutes passed swiftly, and as they went Howland was astounded to how coolly he awaited the end. He even began to debate with himself as to through which hole the fatal shot would be fired. No matter where he stood, he was in the light of the big hanging lamp. There was no obscure or shadowy corner in which for a few moments he might elude his executioner. He even stilled when the thought occurred to him that it was possible to extinguish the light and crawl under the table, thus gaining a momentary delay. But what would that delay avail him? He was anxious for the fatal minute to arrive and be over.

There were moments of happiness when in the damp horror of his death chamber there came before him visions of Melesse, grown even sweeter and more adorable now that he knew how she had sacrificed herself between two great loves—the love of her own people and the love of himself. And at last she had surrendered to him. Was it possible that she could have made that surrender if she, like her brothers, believed him to be the murderer of her father—the son of the man dead who had robbed her of a mother? It was impossible, he told himself. She did not believe him guilty. And yet why had she not given him some such word in her last message to him?

His eyes traveled to the one on the table, and he began searching in his coat pockets. In one of them he found the worn stub of a pencil, and for many minutes after that he was oblivious to the passing of time as he wrote his last words to Melesse. When he had finished he folded the paper and placed it under his watch. At the next moment, before the shot was fired, he would ask Jean to take it. His eyes fell on his watch dial, and a cry burst from his lips.

It lacked but ten minutes of the fatal hour.

Above him he heard faintly the sharp barking of dogs, the hollow sound of men's voices. A moment later there came to him an echo as of swiftly trapping feet and, after that, silence.

"Jean," he called tensely. "Ho, Jean! Jean Croiset!"

He caught up the paper and ran from one black opening to another, calling the Frenchman's name.

"As you love your God, Jean, as you have a hope of heaven, take this note to Melesse!" he pleaded. "Jean—Jean Croiset!"

There came no answer, no movement outside, and Howland stilled the beating of his heart to listen. Surely Croiset was there! He looked again at the watch he held in his hand. In four minutes the shot would be fired. A cold sweat bathed his face. He tried to cry out again, but something rose in his throat and choked him until his voice was only a gasp. He sprang back to the table and placed the note once more under the watch. "Five minutes. One and a half. One."

With a sudden fearless cry he sprang into the very center of his prison and dug out his arms with his face to the hole next the door. This time his voice was almost a shout.

"Jean Croiset, there is a note under my watch on the table. After you have killed me take it to Melesse. If you fail I shall haunt you to your grave."

Still no sound, no gleam of steel pointing at him through the black aperture. Would the shot come from behind?

Tick-tick-tick-tick. He counted the beating of his watch up to twenty. A sound stopped him then, and he closed his eyes, and a great shiver passed through his body. It was the tiny bell of his watch tinkling off the hour of six!

Scarcely had that sound ceased to ring in his brain when from far through the darkness beyond the wall of his prison there came a creaking noise as if a heavy door had been swung slowly on its hinges. A trap opened, then voices, low, quick, excited voices, the hurrying tread of feet, a dash of light shooting through the gloom. They were coming. After all, it was not to be a private affair, and Jean was to do his killing as the hangman's job is done in civilization—before a crowd. Howland's arms dropped to his sides. This was more terrible than the other—this feeling and hearing of preparation, in which he fancied that he heard the click of Croiset's gun as he lifted the hammer.

Instead it was a hand fumbling at the door. There were no voices now, only a strange moaning sound that he could not account for. In another moment it was made clear to him. The door swung open and the white-robed figure of Melesse sprang toward him with a cry that echoed through the dungeon chambers. What happened then—the passing of the white-faced man by the doorway, the sudden murmur of voices—were all lost to Howland in the knowledge that at the last moment they had let her come to him that he held her in his arms and that she was crushing her face to his breast and sobbing things to him which he could not understand. Once or twice in his life he had wondered if realities might not be dreams, and the thought came to him now when he felt the warmth of her hands, her face, her hair and then the passionate pressure of her lips on his own. He lifted his eyes, and in the doorway he saw Jean Croiset and behind him a wild, bearded face—the face that had been over him when life was almost choked from him on the great north trail. And beyond the two he saw still others, shining ghostly and indistinct in the deeper gloom of the outer darkness. He strained Melesse to him, and when he looked down into her face he saw her beautiful eyes flooded with tears and yet shining with a great joy. Her lips trembled as she struggled to speak, then suddenly she broke from his arms and ran to the door, and Jean Croiset came between them, with the wild, bearded man still staring over his shoulder.

"Melesse, will you come with us?" said Jean.

The bearded man dropped back into the thick gloom and without speaking Howland followed Croiset. His eyes on the shadowy forms of Melesse. The ghostly faces turned from the light and the tread of their retreating feet marked the passage through the darkness. Jean fell back beside Howland, the huge bulk of the bearded man three paces ahead. A dozen steps more and they came to a stair, down which a light shone. The Frenchman's hand fell detachingly on Howland's arm, and when a moment later they reached the top of the stairs all had disappeared but Jean and the bearded man. Dawn was breaking, and a pale light fell through the two windows of the room they had entered. On a table burned a lamp, and near the table were several chairs. To one of these Croiset motioned the engineer, and as Howland sat down the bearded man turned slowly and passed through a door. Jean shrugged his shoulders as the other disappeared.

"Mon Dieu, that means that he leaves it all to me," he exclaimed. "I don't wonder that it is hard for him to talk, m'sieur. Perhaps you have begun to understand?"

"Yes, a little," replied Howland. His heart was throbbing as if he had just finished climbing a long hill. "That was the man who tried to kill me. But Melesse—she—He could go no further. Scarcely breathing, he waited for Jean to speak."

"It is Pierre Thoreau," he said. "My brother to Melesse. It is he who should say what I am about to tell you, m'sieur. But he is too full of grief to speak. You wonder at that? And yet I tell you that a man with a better soul than Pierre Thoreau never lived, though three times he has tried to kill you. Do you remember what you asked me a short time ago, m'sieur? I thought that you were the son of John Howland who murdered the father of Melesse sixteen years ago? God's saints, and I did not hardly more than half an hour ago, when some one came from the south and exploded a mine under our feet. It was the youngest of the three brothers. M'sieur, we have made a great mistake, and we ask your forgiveness."

In the silence the eyes of the two men met across the table. To Howland it was not the thought that his life was saved that came with the greatest force, but the thought of Melesse, the knowledge that in two hours when he stood in the light she was nearer to him than ever. He leaned half over the table, his hands clinched, his eyes blazing. Jean did not understand, for he went on quickly.

"I know it is hard, m'sieur. Perhaps it will be impossible for you to forgive a thing like this. We have tried to kill you—kill you by a slow torture, as we thought you deserved. But think for a moment, m'sieur, of what happened up here sixteen years ago this winter. I have told you how I choked life from the man dead. So I would have choked life from the man who had not been for Melesse. I, too, am guilty. Only six years ago we knew that the right John Howland—the son of the man I slew—was in Montreal, and we went to seek him this youngest brother, for he had been a long time at school with Melesse and knew the ways of the south better than we. But he failed to find him at that time, and it was only a short while ago that this brother located you."

"As our Blessed Lady is my witness, m'sieur, it is not strange that he should have taken you for the man we sought, for it is singular that you bear him out like a brother in looks, as I remember the boy. It is true that Francis made a great error when he sent word to his brothers suggesting that if either Gregson or Thorne was put out of the way you would probably be sent into the north. I swear by the Virgin that Melesse knew nothing of the schemes by which his brothers drove Gregson and Thorne back into the south. They did not wish to kill him, and yet it was necessary to do something that you might replace one of them, m'sieur. They did not make a move alone but that something happened. Gregson lost a finger, Thorne was badly hurt, as you know. Bullets came through their windows at night. With Jackpine in their employ it was easy to work on them, and it was not long before they sent down asking for another man to replace them."

For the first time a surge of anger swept through Howland.

Churchill on a visit, especially that I might see her and fall in love with her, m'sieur—which I did. Melesse came to meet to Jean Croiset—and instead of planning your murder, m'sieur, she schemed to save your life—with me—who would have cut you into bits no larger than my finger and fed you to the cartoon ravens, who would have choked the life out of you with your eyes bulged in death, as I choked that one up on the Great North Trail. Do you understand, m'sieur? It was Melesse who came and pleaded with me to save your life—before you had left Chicago, before she had heard more of you than your name, before she had learned."

Croiset hesitated and stopped.

"Before what, Jean?"

"Before she had learned to love you."

"Melesse!" he called, softly. "Melesse!"

In an instant he had darted after her, leaving Jean beside the table. Beyond the door there was only the breaking gloom of the gray morning, but it was enough for him to see faintly the figure of the girl he loved, half turned, half waiting for him. With a cry of joy he sprang forward and gathered the trembling girl close in his arms.

"Melesse—my Melesse!" he whispered.

After that there came no sound from the dawn in the room beyond, but Jean Croiset, still standing by the table, murmured softly to himself, "Our Blessed Lady be praised, for it is all as Jean Croiset would have it—and now I can go to my Marianne!"

Both the bride and groom have farms on Clear Ridge, Bedford county, Pa.

Harrison D. Taylor, aged 62, station agent at Huntingdon, Pa., and Mrs. Jane Sweet, aged 35 of Altoona, Pa., were married here Saturday.

After that there came no sound from the dawn in the room beyond, but Jean Croiset, still standing by the table, murmured softly to himself, "Our Blessed Lady be praised, for it is all as Jean Croiset would have it—and now I can go to my Marianne!"

Federal Control Over Senators

United Press Telegram.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—Declaring himself against the direct election of Senators rather than to have passed an amendment depriving the government from supervision over such elections, Senator McCumber today outlined his views before the Senate. "The direct election of Senators by popular vote," he said, "would result in the election of State legislators on the basis of efficiency rather than political preference. It would dispose of Legislative deadlocks and bribery in Senatorial contests."

On the other hand, he continued, "the who consoles himself with this fact will awake to the fact that he has entered a field equally as dangerous and affording as broad an opportunity for corruption. Only a rich man could bear the expense of two campaigns, one for the nomination and the other for election."

Mr. McCumber advanced the better that popular election of Senators would open a wonderful field for the millionaire and the demagogue.

United Press Telegram.

NEW YORK, June 12.—According to The World, which has made a poll of the United States Senate, the Root amendment to the Canadian reciprocity bill is dead.

The paper further asserts that there is no question but the bill will be finally approved by the Senate in the exact shape it was received from the House. According to The World, the poll on the Root amendment was as follows:

Non-committal 29
Against amendment 19
For amendment 20
Absent 20

The paper says it is certain that two-thirds of the non-committal and absent members are against the amendment and for the bill. The effects of the Root amendment would be to nullify the free wood pulp feature of the bill.

Over 2,000 Satisfied Spectacle Wearers in Fayette County—My Record in Less Than One Year's Time.

THIS IS THE BEST OFFER I HAVE EVER MADE TO THE PEOPLE OF CONNELLSVILLE.

DR. M. B. BURSTAN.

ONE MORE WEEK

AS A GREAT MANY PEOPLE WERE DISAPPOINTED I HAVE DECIDED TO CONTINUE THIS WONDERFUL OFFER FOR ONE MORE WEEK BEGINNING MONDAY AND WILL FIT YOUR EYES WITH $5.00 OR $6.00 "STEVENS S. Q." GOLD FILLED EYE GLASSES FOR $1. EXAMINATION FREE. SATISFACTION GUARANTEED OR MONEY REFUNDED. PLEASE REMEMBER I AM DOING THIS TO BUILD UP A PERMANENT BUSINESS. COME EARLY IN THE MORNING AND EARLY IN THE WEEK AND YOU WILL BE SURE TO GET WAITED ON.

This "Stevens" sale is an advertising proposition pure and simple—your advantage is a superior grade of goods at a special low price—my profit is making 600 new acquaintances and winning their confidence. Stevens mountings are the best in the world—they occupy the same position in the optical trade as "Rogers Bros., 1847" do in the silver line, and "Higin" or "Walburn" do in the watch business.

SUCH A STARTLING ANNOUNCEMENT no doubt makes you ask if it is absolutely bonafide and if so why I do it. The whole story is this. I have decided to make this unheard of sacrifice of regular $3.50 and $5.00 gold-filled glasses at $1 for balance of week to gain the full support and patronage of Connelville people and thus build up an extensive optical business. The lenses are the same I sell in my regular lines, every eye fully guaranteed, and I use just as much care in fitting your eyes. Difficult cases a specialty.

Headaches and nervousness and other troubles far remote from the eye are oftentimes the direct result of an eye strain which if corrected with the proper glasses would give immediate relief. It is not necessary for the eye to be sore to indicate the need of glasses. In many cases the eye may be perfectly healthy and glasses may be needed for the reason which are only apparent to the physician and skilled eye specialist.

SHUR-ON EYEGLASS

EXAMINATION FREE

During this wonderful sale I will be in charge and every patient will get a scientific examination and glasses properly adjusted. REMEMBER I am making this sacrifice for my business and cannot afford to overcharge. Special prices during sale on specially ground lenses and bifocals.

For balance of week only "Stevens S. Q." Gold filled Eyeglass Mounts—every pair guaranteed by the makers—fitted with our own lenses—excluding examination, $5.00.

All "Stevens" frames and mountings are stamped on the bridge—"Stevens S. Q."—look for it—don't take my word. They are gold filled—not gold plated—permanently guaranteed by Stevens & Co., (Inc.) of Providence, R. I., and myself—and will be replaced at any time if they fail to give satisfaction.

Caution about the Use and Selection of Spectacles

"Persons having correct vision will be able to read this notice at a distance of 10 inches from the eye with ease and accuracy. Those who are unable to do so are defective and should have immediate attention. When the eyes become tired from reading or writing, or from any other cause, they should be rested. It is a wise indication that glasses are needed. The eyes are the most delicate of organs and should be protected. Power lenses will correct the vision and prevent the eyes from becoming tired. The glasses should be worn at all times when the eyes are used for any purpose."—Dr. M. B. Burst.

There were many games on the Frick league diamonds and some that weren't on league grounds yesterday and Saturday. In the Frick League's First Division the games were played Saturday. United defeated Hecla and Trauger downing Marguerite. Both games were closely contested.

Yesterday the Third Division teams played their scheduled games. Leisenring won over Dute, Junata gave Lemont an awful doubling while 10 errors enabled Monarch to beat Trotter 5 to 4. But for the ragged support given Jolly Joe the Trotter team would have won.

Leisenring, 11; Dute 2.

The Buying Syndicate With Which Our Carpet Room is Connected Acts as the Agent for Its Store, Compels a Higher Merchandise Standard and Brings the Best, Lower Priced, to the Consumer.

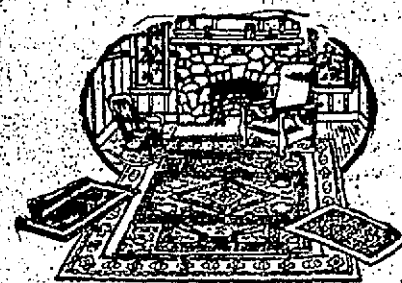

Today Wright-Metzler's invites Connellsville to visit their remarkable Carpet Room—6th floor, and inspect some beautiful floor coverings and wonderful draperies, and to take advantage of, at lowered prices.

Much Splendid Merchandise

This is the First Time, We Believe, That

of this quality has ever been sold under $30. Body Brussels is the highest type of the Brussels family, for beauty of design and length of service. Of course you must not expect us to maintain that price long. One week only at $25.00

Remarkable Reproductions of Real Oriental Designs in These Axminster Rugs $25

No, they've never been seen here before, and it's doubtful after this lot is gone, if we'll see more like them. Elsewhere there is proof of the resistance of wear and age. Colors are as bright and the pile as soft and thick after 27 years, in one instance, as after the first cleaning.

High Grade Axminster Rugs $22.50

For Which $27.50 is Asked Elsewhere. Seamless Brussels Rugs $11.75 Which Can't Be Duplicated for $15.00.

Perhaps this advertisement should be dedicated to June Brides, so much of it is favorable to them. More than all else we'd like to impress upon those who have never visited our Carpet Room that the price alone is all that's cheap here. As in other parts of the store only a very high quality of merchandise is handled, the kind we can put our hand upon and say: "This is the best, we guarantee it fully." For "this is good, not the first grade, as the price will show, but it's the best of its kind and class."

Our prices may appear startling, but in no instance does the quality suffer an adjustment to meet that price. We didn't open our carpet room until certain profit being noticed for the values our patrons may get out of it.

Pretty Lace Curtains With Edges That Makes Many Trips to Stretcher Possible

Pretty patterns, too, and the very finest threads throughout. Centers and borders artistically wrought and some new patterns just brought out. Note that the prices are very small:

Nottingham Curtains 75c and to $5.75

Irish Point Curtains $2.50 and to $8.50

Beautiful Cluny Curtains $2.50 to $6.50

Marie Antoinette Curtains $2 to $5.00

Battenburg Curtains $5.00 and to $12

Cross Stripe Snow Flake 75c to $2.50

Red and Green Portiers—Tapestry Border.

Especially attractive at $2.50 and $3.75.

Others, priced to $15 for silk.

Reversible Rex Rugs—Outdoor—Indoor Use.

Green and brown with green borders.

36x72 $4.75

58x90 $2.95

82x112 $5.00

2x12 feet $9.50

Two Couch Throws Worth $22.50 at $16 Each.

Both designs are exact reproductions of real hand-tied Oriental weavings. Long, silky pile.

A Carpet—Ajax—Worth 25c Yard

Worth 25c because so much of the 25c kind are almost worthless. Hard twisted yarn, shaggy colors.

Serviceable and prettily designed Matting 12 1-2c to 30c yard. Fresh straws from Japan and China.

Morgan Had No Mercy on Hecla

Special to The Courier.

OWENSDALE, June 13.—The Hecla team came here Saturday. They met Morgan and they met defeat. After nine innings of comedy "Slam" Loftus borrowed an adding machine and started to work adding up the scores, counting hits, etc., and he found that Montgomery's tribe had garnered almost a score—19 runs—while the mighty sluggers from the Northern region were deprived of almost everything. Just to keep them in good humor "Slam" gave them 2 stolen base and a couple of hits.

Hecla started out as if there was going to be a baseball game and didn't give Morgan a run in the opening inning. Then the "Little Giant" Haley opened up the second with a screaming single, and then something happened. After a half dozen of hefty bumps at the home plate which netted two runs and left two at the way stations Robbins collided with the pelot for the circuit. Thomas was there too with his trusty bludgeon.

After Morgan had the game on ice, in the fourth inning, they played in an easy manner until the eighth then started to have some fun at Hecla's expense, and if anything went towards heaven it was that little round thing they tossed. There was a large crowd in attendance.

Frank Laporte, who was traded by the Highlanders to St. Louis last winter, is playing great ball for the Browns.

Shortstop Corbin, the youngster who is doing so well with the White Sox, was a kid of the late Frank Seale.

First Baseman Fred Merkle of the Giants, has developed into one of the smoothest all-around players in the game.

Joe Sugden, the old St. Louis catcher, has joined the Detroit team and will act as scout for the Tigers.

Rumor has it that Joe O'Brien, former President of the American Association, will be the next President of the National League.

Pitcher Able, who was tried out by the New York Highlanders, is doing beautiful work for the Oakland team of the Pacific Coast League.

Manager Jack Dunn of the Baltimore club has placed "Cy" Seymour on the block. It seems that "Cy" fell and the water cut ran over him.

Harry Lord hates to win games from the Boston Red Sox so much that he offered to forfeit a month's salary if the White Sox would take four straight from the Red Sox.

National League catchers are murdering the ball this season. Doolan, the Quakers, Breannan, of the Cardinals; Meyers, of the Giants; Simon, of the Pirates; and Graham, of the Rustlers, are all hitting over the 300 mark.
